DR. SHUBBEAL HEWES,
CELEBRATED RHEUMATIC,
NERVE AND BONE
LIMENT.

Applied morning and night, has cured hundreds, & gives relief to the swelling of the glands of the tonsil, & relieves the nummox, & contractions of the limbs, & will take swellings down, and inflammations out of the flesh, rheumatism, bruises and sprains. It gives immediate relief, strengthens weak limbs, and extends the ear when contracted. A few drops on sheep's wool applied to the ear of deaf persons, will, by constant application, cure them to hear in two months' time.

BANGOR WHIG.

SATURDAY, MAY 18, 1841.

Mr. Pindexter's views contain a letter addressed by Mr. Pindexter to Mr. Southard, in which he contends that in consequence of the decease of President Harrison, and the accession of Vice President Tyler to the powers and duties of President of the United States, Mr. Southard has "become the successor of President Tyler, as Vice President of the United States; precisely as he held that office before the death of the late President Harrison."

Mr. Pindexter says:

"It is evident that the Constitution meant to provide against a permanent vacancy in the office of President and Vice President; but if the member of the Senate who takes the chair as the successor of the latter officer, retains his seat in the Senate, he either fills two important stations in connection with the body, or the office of Vice President becomes vacant until a regular election shall take place at the time prescribed in the Constitution. The existing vacancy of the Vice President is thereby laid, and the object of the Constitution in creating that office is clearly to that extent defeated."

If Mr. Pindexter's views are correct, Mr. Southard is no longer President of the Senate pro tempore, but actually Vice President, and consequently ceases to be a Senator for the State of New Jersey, whatever he is President of the Senate by virtue of being Vice President of the United States, and that the Legislature of New Jersey is entitled to choose another Senator in his place, which has just thus become vacant.

A friend of ours, one of the Physicians of this city, received a communication from Dr. J. V. C. Smith, City Physician of Boston, under date of May 20th, which contains the following startling paragraph:

"SMALL POX is cruelly maintained here by people from Maine. It is absolutely astonishing to witness the determined efforts which young men and women from your State make of themselves. As a general rule, they don't believe in vaccination; and therefore, are constantly dying martyrs to their own stubborn ignorance."

In confirmation of this statement, we are acquainted with another fact. Some two or three years since, when the law made it the duty of towns to vaccinate, a physician in a neighboring town, who was also one of the Selectmen, offered to visit every house and vaccinate all the inhabitants for $30. This they refused; and he offered to do it for $20, this being refused, he then offered to do it for $10. Nothing, however, was done about it for a year or more, when one of the Selectmen told him to vaccinate the town—he did it, and brought in his bill for $20, which they refused to pay, and he gave it to them.

Comment seems unnecessary after all the accumulated evidence from every part of the civilized world of the efficacy of vaccination in preventing small pox, or so far modifying it as to disarm it of its horrors. Let those whose duty it is, and those who are interested, look to it.

The temperance reform is becoming general and universal, and Washington Temperance Societies are forming in every part of our fair land. This is well and should encourage those who have undertaken the work of reform to persevere in well doing. In the little village of Saucupper we notice by the Portland Advertiser, the work of reformation has commenced. Men have taken it in-hand, says a correspondent of that paper, who have some experience in the dissolute ranks of intemperance—such of energy who will not falter in their onward course. It originated only a fortnight since, and it is perfectly astonishing to notice its salutary effect on the appearance and deportment of our citizens. The Society now numbers 167 members, consisting of the various shades, from the occasional dunker of a glass of wine to the confirmed sot, with a few total abstinence men, who belonged to no other temperance society.

There is a great demand in our market for timber for the present season. Our barbary is now full of vessels, and there is not lumber enough in market to supply the demand. Good seasoned lumber brings $21 to 14.9.

It is a remarkable fact, says the Boston Atlas, and one that is deserving of great attention, that of the 1,600 majority in the last Congress, numbering over a hundred and thirty, which trampled upon the rights of New Jersey, and passed the infamous Sub-treasury in—ONLY SEVEN HAVE BEEN RE-ELECTED! A fine signal example of the retributive justice overtaking, sooner or later, political crimes, cannot be found in the annals of the country.

From a statement believed to be substantially correct, furnished in New York by Mr. Hale of the newsroom, we learn that the number of persons on board the Pres. M. & Co. 130, passengers 27, officers and attendants & engineer's department 31; ship's company 33; cook's department 16. The President had four boats, in as good order as ordinary ship boats, capable, in good weather, of carrying 80 persons. None of them were life boats.

FLORIDA. Two men were murdered by the Indians near Trader's Hill on the 12th instant, and the report was that others had met a like fate. The impression seems to be that the Treaty is at an end, and that the fighting will soon commence. The troops were very sickly. Of the 1st Regiment of Infantry nearly one-third were on sick list at Fort A. M. I. The Manobster (N. H.) Memorial states that only one hundred and ten have been transported of the 2,000 cases of that village during the present year. Gloucester ought to have doubtless evidence of the "copper" you.

West Indies. The brig Oliver, Capt. Galagher, arrived at New York on Sunday from Gibilterra, having last from Alexandria, reports having seen, April 17 last, 35-50 tons of 28 the wreck of a vessel about 120 tons. Capt. Flanders, of Silas Richards, from Liverpool, on the 20th ult. last, 36-32 tons, 70, saw the wreck of a large vessel with jib boom and bowsprit standing. Capt. Ferris of the Westchester arrived on Monday, passed on the 15th inst. last, 41 ton 61 the wreck of a vessel from 500 to 600 tons, full of water and all her masts gone.

EXEMPLAR! David G. Burnett, better known as Judge Burnett, formerly Chief Justice, and now President pro tem. of the Republic of Texas, and also President of the Texas Bible Society, lately challenged Gen. Samuel Houston to fight a duel! He was publicly censured by a meeting of the citizens, called in reference to that subject.

The Montreal Herald of the 20th mentions a report of the destruction of a number of vessels at the Cedar, 50 miles above that city, in a gale by which about 50 lives were lost.

NAVAL. The U. S. Brig Dolphin arrived on Tuesday at New York from the coast of Africa.

FISHERMEN'S WRONOS.

Desirous that the American Government, and more especially those engaged in the fisheries, may be made acquainted with another high handed and unjust misuse and condemnation of an American vessel, which, pursuing her lawful calling, and without a shadow of proof of her having infringed on the treaty between the two Governments, I deem it my duty, together with my crew, to lay my case before the public, showing the persecutions of fishermen, and the urgent necessity that our Government should give them immediate and ample protection.

I was employed in this branch of business called vigilantly and justly for protection. While there are British cruisers at and near the fishing grounds, the Americans have not one. The case of the Pioneer, in one of great outrage—I was on the proper fishing-ground, and of this fact there is no doubt; for the commander of the British vessel who seized me, acknowledged that I was at sufficient distance from land.

I left Sullivan in the schooner Pioneer, and anchored off Sandy Cove in 50 fathoms water, four miles from land. I was boarded by Capt. Darby, in a schooner called the "Two Sisters," from Halifax, who peremptorily ordered me to get under way, and said that if I did not, in one hour, he would take the vessel from me. I immediately commenced getting under way, and while doing this, was again boarded by him, although 20 minutes of the hour had only expired; my papers were demanded, the vessel was taken, and a prize crew put on board and ordered to Yarmouth, N. S. An appeal to him for justice or a hearing, was words thrown away. He constituted himself judge, and sentenced the whole and best pleased him.

On our arrival at Yarmouth, even the British Collector refused to receive the Pioneer as a prize, and would have nothing to do with the matter. The above facts are a brief outline of my situation, and to myself and crew most strikingly afflicting. Having been forwarded on our way home as far as Eastport, by the American Cobul, and being left without means of paying our way along, we have been kindly received on board the U. S. Revenue Cutter "Alert," where we are now. The Cutter leaves to-day, alluding use passage and support in her, and will take us to our homes.

For the benefit of fishermen, I would respectfully request that papers generally will give this notice.

ISAAC SMITH,

Late Captain of the Schooner Pioneer,

For himself and crew.

The Temperance Reform. Of the many invaluable benefits to society which the temperance reformation has so happily achieved, there is none more worthy of record than that of the pure and ardent attachment to each other's welfare, which nobly distinguishes the members of our various associations. When a brother is overtaken by sickness and distress, or stands in need of friendly counsel and advice, it is considered a duty to lend him such assistance as may tend to alleviate his sufferings, and restore him again to his usefulness. We yesterday afternoon witnessed the burial of a member of the Marsh Society, Mr. John L. Harewood, whose remains were attended to, their final resting place, by some hundreds of the society, accompanied by the solemn strains of an effective band of music. The banners were clothed in mourning, and the solemn and appropriate appearance of the procession, imparted to all who witnessed it, a feeling of the most profound respect for the association. The concourse at the grave was addressed by the Rev. Mr. Sewell of the Methodist Episcopal Church, in a very effective manner, and the burial service being performed, the deceased was consigned to his narrow house amid the tears and sympathies of numerous friends. Baltimore Patriot.

THE GUILLOTINE.

"Keep the guillotine in motion!" "Off with their heads!" Thus groans the Jacobins under the knife of reform. Although the operation may be painful to them, the gangrene must be removed from the body politic. The dentist will not stay his hand while extracting a tooth, because the patient writhes under the knife of reform. The dentist, who operated at the commencement in 1830, as one of their cardinal sins, said, that to the visitors belong the spills, the only doctrine professed by the late dynasty, which was rigidly adhered to in practice, down to the day and hour of its dissolution. The first principle of the dynasty—in his first inaugural address, declared that the task of reform, "was inscribed on the list of executive duties, which it is to be eligible to be overlooked." Then the act of proscription fell rapidly and heavily, and the heads of omnipotentable men, whose only crime was that of being friends of the preceding administration, were struck off in rapid succession. The army department, of which General Jackson was the head, was the first to be affected, and the heads of omnipotentable men, whose only crime was that of being friends of the preceding administration, were struck off in rapid succession. The army department, of which General Jackson was the head, was the first to be affected, and the heads of omnipotentable men, whose only crime was that of being friends of the preceding administration, were struck off in rapid succession.

XXI. Constantly arrange beforehand, the daily work of your firms. Then none of your business-hands ever be idle, or waiting to be told what he has to do.

XXII. Provide a place for every thing and misplace nothing. No time will ever then be lost in searching for what you want.

XXIII. Keep double sets of such plantation fixtures as are most used, and most exposed to wear and tear. A whole set of extra sets, well be surely repaid by saving the whole time lost in waiting for repairs, where only single sets are kept.

XXIV. Never, ready to what are called "make shifts," when it is possible to avoid it; for they encourage carelessness and sloth, of which they are the natural offspring.

XXV. Take every care of the lawyer's maxim, "do not sue out of law." the law regards not the amiable master, must be the surest guide, or his largest concern can never prosper as they might.

XXVI. To keep good gates and fences, saves much time and labor in preventing trespasses; much loss of crops from depredations; and best of all, it saves much wrangling and ill will among neighbors, who are always your stock.

XXVII. If you are inclined in your profession, the diligent culture of your mind to be independent, as that of your fields.

XXVIII. Never admit the self-hateful folly of looking upon any of the honest trades, prof. & labor as calling, or inferior to your's.

XXIX. That a nation is a nation, not only between the whole, which cannot possibly be measured without the cordial co-operation of argument for its removal. How does it happen now, that when a howling demagogue is removed from an office, which he has prostituted to his own private purposes, they are apparently disgusted, and roll up their eyes with abhorrence? The tables are turned; the axe now falls upon their own necks. No doubt when the internal guillotine, seeking with the blood of the numerous victims of the ferocity of Robespierre, Danton and Marat, was ready to do execution upon them, they raised their voices of proscription, "proscription!"

What has now become of the doctrine of "rotation in office," which was considered as sound and so wholesome in 1829? Then it was the perfection of democracy; now it is perfectly horrible, in the eyes of the self-styled democrats.

If there is any one trait of character that deserves and receives universal contempt, it is that of the hypocrite. It is not necessary to remind any one who has his eyes open, that the Jacobin faction has richly merited the supreme contempt which attached itself to such a character.

We wish to have it understood distinctly that we are no advocates for proscription in the sense of that term. No man ought to be removed from office without good and sufficient cause.

[From the Albany Citizen.]

MAXIMS AND TROUBLES FOR YOUNG FARMERS.

I. Regard all persons whose time and labor are wholly at your command, as beings for whose health, comfort, and good conduct in this life, you will be held most fearfully responsible in the life to come.

II. Never forget that both man and bodily health depend on the same thing; that in temperance in food, drink, and all sensual indulgence, and temperance in the use of money, to yet rich.

III. To wish well is not enough; you must also do well, or your friends, and the world with out good works, will be dead and utterly useless.

IV. Ever bear in mind, that useful knowledge and a proper application of it, are to the health of the soul; what wholesome food and appropriate exercise are to the health of the body.

V. Value as you ought the experience of others, and your own will cost you less than without such aid; since to use their goods only an effort of memory, whereas the price paid for your own will often be the loss of health, fortune and character.

VI. The more you strive to enrich your minds with every good thing which men and books can teach, the greater will be your power to gain wealth, honor, fame, and every rational enjoyment.

VII. Trust not others to do for you, what you can readily and easily do yourself.

VIII. The former who is ashamed of annual labor, will very soon find cause to be much more ashamed of himself.

IX. If you ever make a business of your pleasure, you will most assuredly soon make an end of your business.

X. Leave show to spendthrifts and fools, while you and your families consult only taste, simplicity, comfort and usefulness, in all your arrangements and expenses.

XI. Love not money for its own sake; still less for the power it gives you to gratify selfish and sinful passions. But fail not to regard it as the most efficient means to accomplish all benevolent purposes. You will then make it a blessing instead of a curse, both to yourselves and others.

XII. True economy consists not so much in saving money, as in spending it wisely, judiciously and judiciously for purposes really useful. This annually increases your profits, instead of diminishing, or keeping them stationary.

XIII. Avoid debt as you would a pestilence, for it humiliates, debages and degrades man in his own eyes; subjects him to insults and persecutions from others; but still worse, it is a perpetual temptation, however anxiously resisted, to fraud, falsehood and theft, nay, not unfrequently, larceny and self-wounding.

XIV. To take advantage in a bargain, is virtually to take money out of another's pocket, who is not aware of it. "Worldlings call it 'fair play,'" but ill honest men call it cheating and swindling.

XV. The only just means of increasing wealth, are constant industry, true economy of time as well as money, well directed labor, and the regular application of a portion of our fair profits to increase our capital.

XVI. Never expect your lands to give you much, for the power it gives you to gratify selfish and sinful passions. But fail not to regard it as the most efficient means to accomplish all benevolent purposes. You will then make it a blessing instead of a curse, both to yourselves and others.

XVII. Economy, not less than humanity, requires you to keep all your farming stock in thriving condition; for a working animal in good order, will do much more work and eat less than a poor one; while the rest of your stock, well kept, will yield more of every thing, than double their number, if half starved, as such animals often are.

XVIII. To save at the spigot, and let out at the bung, will soon empty the biggest keg.

XIX. In all your farming operations, never forget that time, like money, if once lost, is forever past recovery.

XX. Constantly arrange beforehand, the daily work of your farms. Then none of your business-hands ever be idle, or waiting to be told what he has to do.

XXI. Provide a place for every thing and misplace nothing. No time will ever then be lost in searching for what you want.

XXII. Keep double sets of such plantation fixtures as are most used, and most exposed to wear and tear. A whole set of extra sets, well be surely repaid by saving the whole time lost in waiting for repairs, where only single sets are kept.

XXVII. Never admit the self-hateful folly of looking upon any of the honest trades, prof. & labor as calling, or inferior to your's.

XXVIII. That a nation is a nation, not only between the whole, which cannot possibly be measured without the cordial co-operation of XXVIII. Encourage, both by precept and example, the true, bold husband; for it is only by a strong will, and a bold heart, that a nation can be advanced, and roll up their eyes with abhorrence to its preparation and above all, advances the welfare of your country, by promoting the most important of all her great interests.

XXIX. Never forget yourselves, as some people say, that you know all which can be known, even of the most simple branch of your profession; or you will soon know much less than thousands of your modest, less assuming brethren. But always act under the firm belief that there is no insurmountable limit to our acquisitions in any art or science, whenever you encounter difficulties, which constantly, diligently study cannot overcome. Your progress then, towards the highest attainable point in whichever you prefer, will be secure as fate itself. The accidents and vicissitudes of life may possibly interrupt your course, but only temporarily; and you will finally conquer, with absolute certainty, all obstacles that are not insuperable.

And now, Messrs. Editors, suffer me to conclude, to add a few predoctoral remarks to the older class of your readers, which they should possibly suppose I was vain enough to believe, that there was something new to them in what I have just written. My only purpose was to endeavor to render some service to my youthful brethren, upon whose characters and conduct so much of their country's good depends, by imparting for their special use, the result of many years experience and observation.

In executing this purpose, it occurred to me that to give these results in the form of detached maxims and precepts, would probably be more apt to engage their attention, than if I presented them in the more direct, connected style of an essay or lecture. With this explanation I leave them to their fate; but with the confident hope that all will prove profitable, which prompted them, when some may think of the matter and manner of the author.

Yours, with regard,

JAMES M. GARNETT.
